Faheem Jamal is resident of Westchester County with a degree in business administration from Pace University, with a major in management and a minor in economics. Faheem began stocking shelves for Chestnut Marts at 14 years old. Since then, he has risen in the ranks to becoming the director of convenience store operations for CPD and its 60 locations across the Tri-State area, 26 of which are in Westchester County, now under the name Chestnut Market.

After working as a stock person, Faheem began training as a sales associate. After demonstrating above-average sales skills as a cashier, Faheem was asked to serve as interim manager at a location that had been struggling, just months after being moved to cashier. At just 16 years old, Faheem took the role, managed a staff of 5, and was single handedly in charge of a business that generated $2.4 million in revenue, and drove sales 35% higher year-over-year.

When Faheem left for college, he knew exactly where he wanted to work after he graduated. He continued to work part-time as a field auditor for CPD, creating and implementing the company's first loss prevention program. Faheem created procedures that helped limit cash and critical inventory theft and shortages, essentially making each step of a given shift reviewable and easier to trace any discrepancies.

After he graduated from Pace, Faheem was promoted to territory manager for the Company's Westchester County sites. Faheem shined in his new position. Overseeing 15 locations, Faheem implemented tactical sales, product placement and attention-to-detail strategies that boosted the Westchester Territory's sales exponentially, strengthening CPD's footprint in the industry and community. During his tenure as territory manager, his strong performance was recognized in the industry and was selected for The Griffin Report's "40 Under 40 In the C-Store Category" nomination.

Just 13 months later, Faheem was promoted to director of convenience store operations for CPD's 45 Chestnut Market locations in the Tri-State area, where he currently serves. Faheem has helped the company grow into what is now 60 convenience store/gas station locations, which, in total, yield around $225 million in annual sales. As director of the 60 sites, Faheem leads over 300 sales associates, 60 site managers, 4 territory managers, purchasing managers and food service managers. Faheem's ability to analyze consumer behavior, research product demand and profitability, and teach impactful sales strategies has been the leading tailwind for Chestnut Market's continued success in the convenience store industry, and he claims that he is "just getting started".
